Lesson Aim

Main aim: By the end of the lesson, learners will have written a PET-style reply email using cohesive devices (As for, That way) to connect their ideas naturally.

Subsidiary aim: Learners will also have practised identifying key task requirements and evaluating model responses against cohesion criteria.

Lesson Stages

Time	Goal	Procedure	Int
STAGE 1: Lead-in
5 min	To activate learners' interest in the PET email task and set the context	- Show the splash and title slides. Elicit: "What makes an email sound natural?" - Display the PET email task from Mrs Lake on the screen. - Elicit what the four notes mean: Great!, Explain, Suggest ..., Tell Mrs Lake. - Tell students: "Today you will learn how to make your email flow naturally — not just tick the boxes."	T-Ss
STAGE 2: Task Analysis
8 min	To identify key task requirements and generate initial ideas	- Distribute PET Writing Email worksheet. Ask pairs to read the task and underline: Who is the email to? What four things must you include? - Feedback as a class. Confirm the four required notes. - Brainstorm as a class: "What could you say for each note? Write ideas on the board."	T-Ss, Ss-Ss

Time	Goal	Procedure	Int
		Students write rough ideas in the 'Plan' box on their worksheet (2 min).
STAGE 3: Language Input: Cohesive Devices
10 min	To introduce cohesive devices (As for, That way) for natural email flow	- Display two versions of the same email: one with basic linkers, one with cohesive devices. - Elicit which sounds more natural and why. - Present the target language: 'As for' (topic shift) and 'That way' (result/reason). - Students complete a gap-fill on the worksheet matching sentences with the correct device.	T-Ss, S
STAGE 4: Controlled Practice
8 min	To practise using cohesive devices in sentence-level email writing	- Students rewrite three gapped sentences from a model email, inserting 'As for' or 'That way' appropriately. - Peer check in pairs, then feedback with the whole class. - Model answer displayed on the board. Clarify any confusion.	S, Ss-Ss
STAGE 5: Production: Writing the Email
15 min	To write a complete PET-style email using cohesive devices	- Students write the email individually (12–15 min). Refer to the plan box. - Remind them to use 'As for' and 'That way' at least once each. - Walk around, monitor and assist with ideas/language. - Fast finishers: check their email against the four notes checklist.
